Sally Anderson

After fabulous experiences and feedback in 2017, National Pilates Training is delighted to host Sally Anderson for the second year running! Over four separate sessions throughout the year, Sally will delve into the history, lineages and applications of the Pilates Method in an intensive Pilates Immersion program.

Each session will include a Matwork or similar group workout class, and experiential repertoire exploration relevant to the day's focus.

Session 1: History and lineages

Beginning with a look at the history and development of the Pilates Method, and the transition to its present global context, we will build a perspective based in facts which considers industry development and lineages, as well as important figures in the history of the Method. We will familiarise ourselves with significant events which affected the profession, as well as formative studios, figures and lineages. We will also apply selected repertoire variations across apparatus and approaches.

Session 2: Modern Posture

Looking at strategies, approaches and repertoire applications for Modern Posture, this session examines more complex biomechanical issues developing from modern lifestyles, along with exercise selections and repertoire variations to apply in the studio to rebalance. Sessions 2 and 3 are postgraduate-level work.

Session 3: Creating an environment for health

Exploring strategies, approaches and repertoire which allow us to create an environment for health. We will examine essential requirements, exercise selections and repertoire variations which allow us to layer a more detailed understanding of how to function more efficiently and how to view Pilates programming for a health-enabling perspective.

Session 4: Programming and application

This is a day of programming for more complex client issues and conditions, working through activities related to programs provided as templates for experiential use and the repertoire variations from the programs. Client condition template programs will be provided, although requests to include specific conditions or requirements may be made in advance.
